CARTER: In addition to being excellent businesses, we give back. We give back to our people, we give back to the communities where we live and work.

CARTER: Nationwide has an almost 100-year history of serving our members and our customers. The relationship between BNY Mellon and Nationwide, it's more than a business. BNY Mellon brings investment expertise, risk management, creativity, so that the solutions that Nationwide provides our customers are creative, and innovative, and effective.

PACILIO: BNY Mellon brings the power of our investment management expertise to help design investment products to help Nationwide's customers achieve their financial objectives - and ultimately financial success. So Nationwide's success enables them to support Nationwide Children's Hospital.

CARTER: The hospital provides critical care to every child regardless of their ability to pay. Since 2006, the Nationwide Foundation has provided over $140MM in funding to provide research and resources for even more work that can be done at the hospital.

MARDIS: In the future, we'll be able to take what we learn and use that to really predict kids that are going to develop problems later on in life. And this is at the interface of changing medical care because it turns it from being reactive to being proactive. Without the corporate sponsorship, we wouldn't have the wherewithal to drive that innovation.

PACILIO: I've been working with Nationwide for as long as I've been at the organization, 35 years. And it's very humbling to be a part of an organization that means so much to its community. Working with the hospital and seeing what they do makes me feel very proud.
